25X1

The military situation remains generally calm throughout most of the country with only scattered shellings and ground probes around government enclaves being reported. Government forces are meeting little resistance in their clearing operations along the Mekong River near Phnom Penh. Some 3,000 civilian refugees were escorted to government-held areas over the weekend. In the southwest, the government relief force trying to move down Route 4 to the isolated garrison at Kompong Seila has encountered strong opposition.
